

Why should I use a Havahart Trap?

There are many outdoor animals that can be considered a nuisance to your yard, garden, or sometimes to your house itself. Controlling these pests can be a problem, but at Benedict's we sell many different live animal traps made by the Havahart company that can be used to safely and humanely trap these animals, allowing you to transport them far from your home and set them free to live elsewhere and no longer bother you.

How should I go about trapping and handling the animal?

Once you have chosen the trap you need for your animal problem, simply set it outside near where you know the animals frequent, place some bait in the trap in a position such that the animal has to step on the trigger panel to access it, and set the trap according to the directions. Once the animal has been caught, you can transport it away from your house (should travel greater than 5 miles away, as the animal can easily find its way back to your home from less than that) and set it free. The best way to let it out of the trap is to stand over top of it so that you are straddling it and open it so that the animal will run away from you.

Keep in mind, it is illegal to relocate certain species of animals. Please check the laws before relocating a wild animal.
